Notes from Norm

Easter is upon us and it's time to look at the cross again.
Do we have to?

Sometimes it's much easier to talk about the Good Samaritan or the Sermon on the Mount. Well, maybe not that, "Blessed are the Poor" part... or the, "Woe to you who are Rich"... (which always feels a little awkward) – but, at least if it makes us uncomfortable, we can sit down and have a debate about economics, social nets and individual responsibility. But, the cross? It's so painful and ugly... it's hard to understand and seems to suggest a pretty nasty God that would let it all happen – pardon me, make it all happen – to an obedient, loving son. But, if not now... when?

Jesus died for our sins. That's what we are taught. It's what the Apostle Paul preached. So, who are we to disagree? I'm not going to disagree... but I will point out that Paul had a lot of different ways of looking at the cross and understanding Jesus' death and resurrection. You need to appreciate that Paul was in the earliest days of this "Jesus Movement", trying to make sense of the things that he had seen and heard... he didn't have any of our great hymns to guide him, so he came up with some different ways of understanding Jesus' death. Over time, however, one of his understandings took root and became what we call the dominant theology of the cross.

There is a green hill far away, outside a city wall, where the dear Lord was crucified, who died to save us all.

*We may not know, we cannot tell, what pains he had to bear;
but we believe it was for us he hung and suffered there.*

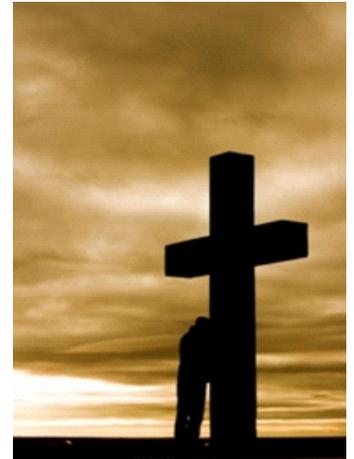

*There was no other good enough to pay the price of sin;
his death has opened wide the gate of heaven, to let us in.*

O dearly, dearly has he loved, and we must love him too, and trust in his redeeming blood, and try his works to do.

There Is a Green Hill Far Away, Cecil Frances Alexander, 1848

Why did that one come to dominate all the others? Well, perhaps because it is the correct one. Or, perhaps because it made sense in our world. For millennia we have lived in a world that is most comfortable with action and consequence. We believe that we get what we pay for and that there is "no free lunch". We recognize that we're not the people that we could be – we fail at many things, sometimes unaware that we are about to fail and other times, going barreling headlong down a path that we know God would not endorse, a path that satisfies us at the expense of others and costs far more than the benefit could ever justify. So, being less than great people, how is that we believe that God loves us? How is it that we can have any expectation of God's love, support and presence? Well, something must have bought him off – balanced the scales – paid the price. A quick survey of the sins of the world and our most recent bank or life withdrawals makes it pretty clear that we haven't paid the tab – so the idea of Jesus paying for our sins, makes sense in our pay to play world. Also, we see God as a great King. What kind of great King puts up with disobedience from his subjects and just forgives again and again? A King like that, in the real world, would be taken advantage of and soon conquered; thought a weak minded fool and locked away. You can't just go around forgiving people – they'll walk all over you. Jesus as payment for our disobedience keeps God out of the loony bin.

So, it is with trepidation that I dare to imagine any other way of seeing the cross. I know that it makes God seem cruel to some and petty to others. But... remember when Jesus said that he came to fulfill the law and not destroy it? (Matthew 15 for those of you playing along at home). He seems to have been kind of a law and order guy... I don't want to destroy or break a law that's been working for a lot of people for 2,000 years.

When faced with such a dilemma, I have a tried and true practice:

I avoid it.

I watch a movie... go shopping... read a book... get a pedicure... anything to put it out of my mind. But it's Lent – the perfect time to consider the cross and so I can't seem to put it out of my head.

My second tried and true practice:

Talk to Jesus.

I know that sounds strange... but that's what I do. I imagine sitting with Jesus and I talk to him... I tell him my dilemma and in my imagination we converse. Before you call someone and book me a room beside the Almighty, I want to assure you that I don't really think that Jesus in body and flesh is making a house call... but I do believe that at the very least; unlocking my imagination is useful when it comes to looking for answers and new understandings.

So, I sat with Jesus, in my living room. He took the big chair beside the piano. I was glad to see that he wasn't wearing a tie (people in ties intimidate me); I was surprised that he was wearing fedora... something that he's trying out, he told me... "It looks so good on Justin Timberlake."

I asked if he would like a drink... he asked for water.

"Are you sure, because I've almost everything here... whatever you like"

"Norm, you do remember that I can turn water into pretty much anything I like... and I enjoy water, it's kinda my thing... with baptisms and all."

"Right..." I got him the water and waded into my dilemma: "Jesus, I don't understand the cross".

He smiled. "Paul didn't explain it well enough for you?"

"No, no... I mean, yes, yes... Paul did a great job... but ransom? You paid because we humans aren't good enough; not beloved enough for God without someone else paying the bill?"

"Wow, you have been thinking."

"It just seems so antiquated... and weird. What about all of those people who were born and died before you... or what about those who don't know you or believe in you... did you die for them, too, or do we have to join the club and be members in good standing before it counts?"

"And to think that you're teachers didn't think you'd amount to much... These are good questions, Norm... You do understand that time is a thing that you experience; for God it's kind of like everything is now... and forever. So born before the Bible stories, born after, no big deal... and you do understand that as much as you may love me, you can't define me or box me in – so you never know how I've been able to reach people... All sorts of ways that I might have influenced other lives..."

"So, you're saying that there are ways to engage with you... with God... that I might not understand?"

"What do you say?"

"Oh no... I'm not playing that game. Last time someone played that game it was Peter and you gave him the responsibility for the whole church, I can barely handle my job."

"Okay... so what do you say about the cross. Don't worry, I promise that I'm easier than your Ordination Interview."

"Well... on the cross, I see the worst that the world can do to you. I see a point in time where betrayal, abuse, torture and even death have all collided. All of the evil that humanity can do meets together on the cross... but it's not enough to make you, or God, give up. You forgive your tormentors, you love your betrayers... you do not turn your back on the world, even when the world has shown you it's ugliest brutal face. In the end, love matters. All those other things fade away... but not you; not love."

"Ooooh, I like it.... Say more."

"On the cross, I discover that death is not the end. Not the end of love; not the end of your ministry; not even the end of life..."

"I do believe in your physical resurrection."

"Thank you."

"No, really... your resurrection is such a powerful statement about the lack of finality in death; a sense that no matter what the world does, love will triumph... It is so profound and metaphorical, that it is tempting to believe that it is simply and only that: a metaphor."

"It is a metaphor."

"You mean it didn't happen?"

"No, I mean that it continues to happen... all the time. My resurrection should always point you beyond a single point in history to a broader truth that is evident in the universe..."

"So, it didn't happen?"

"Does it matter?"

"Yeah, it matters... I think. I mean... you're the law and order guy. The one who came, not to destroy or abolish the law, but to fulfill it... So, shouldn't we have some kind of rule of law; some kind of orthodox belief?"

"You know, Norm... I wish that I could have that moment back."

"Which moment?"

"When I said that... fulfill the law, thing."

"Why? Didn't you mean it?"

"Sure, I meant it... it's just that I meant more. If I could say it again, or get John to edit his text, I would have said 'I haven't come to abolish the law, but rather to fulfill it overflowing...'"

"What the heck does that mean?"

"It means that I want to fulfill the law... do the right things... answer the hopes of people, fulfill the theologies at work in the community... but I also want to over-fill them, so that they can spill over... break out of their vessels, engage the imagination and go beyond."

"So, you came to fulfill our theologies... answer our hopes... but to also invite us to go beyond... imagine more deeply... which means that..."

"That it's okay to say that I died on the cross for you... it's also okay to say that something else happened on the cross, too... and something else... and something else... and just maybe you shouldn't wait for Lent to have these thoughts and we, these conversations."

I thought about it in silence for a few minutes... Jesus waited.

I thought about God coming to me through the cross; I thought about the intersection of heaven and earth that is symbolized by the cross, I thought about a world that worships a culture of death and a God who refuses to participate... I thought about so many things, that I realized that Jesus had just taken all of my theology and fulfilled it to overflowing... actually, invited me to fulfill it to over-flowing.

And then he got up to leave...

"You're leaving?" I asked.

"It's time," he explained.

"Will you be coming back?" I asked...

"What did Easter teach you?"

And with a tip of his hat... he was gone.

For now.

I wish for you, all of the best in the time of Lent and Easter – may you have many blessings and many conversations and may you share them with your friends at Jubilee.
Happy Easter

Herding Cats and Other DZ Adventures

Can you feel the excitement in the air? Things are moving and shaking in the youth ministry and I don't just mean Lee-Ann dancing down the hallways of Jubilee.

Allow me to introduce myself, my name is Donna Rutz and I'm the new Sunday School Superintendent. I'm looking forward to jumping in and giving a hand where needed. I'm pleased to report that our small, yet hardy band of Discovery Zones volunteers have been working hard with the Jubilee children.

As always, we are blessed with the steady presence of Barbara Ewins keeping her watchful eye on our youngest Jubilee members in the daycare. Jo Dullard and Susan McKendry are working with our preteens. Lee-Ann and Jo are also wrangling the Youth Group, (a feat very similar to herding cats, if cats had cell phones). However the time has come to bolster our numbers and round up some new recruits.

Yes, I'm looking at you. Now, don't turn the page, just hear me out.

I was terrified the first time I taught DZ too. After all, I'm not a mom, I don't teach kids, what do I do if they gang up on me or I can't get up out of those impossibly tiny chairs they all sit in? Most importantly, what the heck do I say to them? What was Lee-Ann thinking? But once she talked me off the ledge, and guided me on my way, I actually had a ton of fun and learned a bunch of stuff too.

And so can you.

The good news is Lee-Ann and her team have your back too. She has been working hard at finding new curriculum for our kids to keep them engaged. There are lessons to follow and we would pair you up with someone in case things get challenging. We want you to have a toolkit of skills so you can relax with the kids and together you can learn and play in Discovery Zones.

So what are you waiting for? Come on and join the fun. We double dog dare ya.

The program includes one of J. S. Bach's greatest organ works, the Toccata and Fugue in F Major, and ends with Gigout's brilliant Toccata.

We have sent cheques for $1558.00 to each of the following: Second Harvest Food Bank; North York Harvest Food Bank; and the Community Share Food Bank.

In addition, from Bethesda Outreach Fund interest accumulated this year, we have sent cheques for $250.00 to each of the following: Anishnawbe Health Centre; Eastminster 'Out of the Cold' Program; Eva's Initiatives for Youth; and the Red Door Family Shelter.

Maundy Thursday

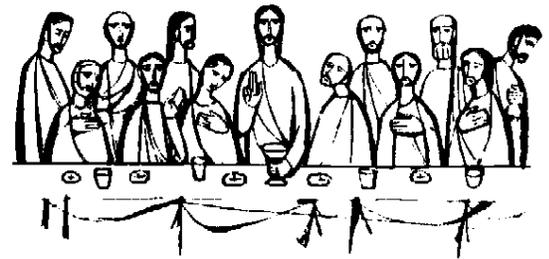

Maundy Thursday, also called Holy Thursday, is the Thursday before Easter. Christians remember it as the day of the Last Supper, when Jesus washed the feet of his disciples and established the ceremony known as the Eucharist or Communion.

Just so you know, the word "maundy" likely comes from the mangling of the latin, "Mandatum novum do vobis" ("a new commandment I give to you").

Now that you know everything, perhaps you would like join us at Jubilee for a Maundy Thursday Service to be held on Thursday, March 28 at 6:00pm.

It will be an intimate service of worship around the table sharing food. In the sharing of a simple meal we will search for meaning in the symbols and memories that are always with us. We will have foot and/or hand washing; we will share food, laughter, companionship and we will complete the evening with candles and a shared reading of The Last Supper, the Betrayal, the Trial and Crucifixion of Jesus. (much like a Tenebrae service).

The service will be casual and intimate and you are invited.

All that we ask is that you sign up so that we can prepare the appropriate amount of food for all. The sign up sheet should be easy to find in the front foyer... or you can phone the church office, or even email nseli@jubileeunited.ca

Youth Group

2013 has started out quite busy for the youth group.

Planning started the end of January for the Youth Service held February 10. Three weeks of very interesting discussion resulted in a compelling service written and delivered by the youth group.

Although Mother Nature got in the way of our planned Family Skate throwing a ton of snow at us forcing a cancellation; undeterred, we will reschedule. We did however have a very successful combined youth and junior youth bowling afternoon which Mother Nature allowed to go on. Hopefully by the time you read this we will have also managed to co-ordinate our schedules for a game or two of laser tag.

On the horizon: The continuation of games night in the gym. We've come up with some new games and challenges including chariot races. A sheet, two "horses", and a rider. Should be fun. Up next will be the Palm Sunday Pageant. It's an all ages production, so if after watching the Oscar's you thought to yourself, I can do that! Now is your chance! Seriously, how hard can it be? Speak to Lee-Ann and let her know you're interested. We would like to welcome our newest member Jessica McKendry to the youth group and we look forward to her added energy and contributions.

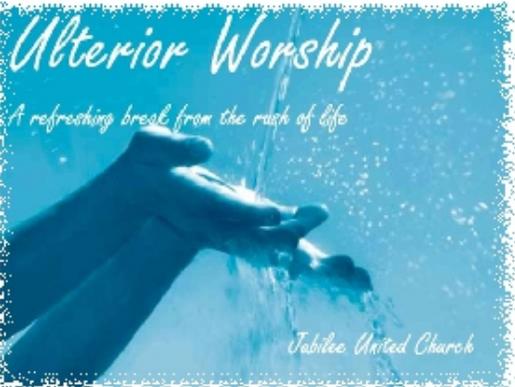

Rise and Shine...

that's Easter, right?

Bright (sometimes) and Early (always) in the Heritage Room

Invite Jubilee to Your Next Celebration

When the Watsons planned to celebrate a milestone wedding anniversary last year there was no doubt that we would host a party for our close friends and family. Surrounded by family and long standing friends was simply the best celebration we could think of. We knew also that they would bring gifts even if the invitation insisted otherwise. We considered how we could turn this generosity to the larger good and we decided to name Jubilee as a worthy recipient for those wanting to make a donation in our honour. Our generous friends and family donated nearly $5,000.00 to Jubilee. Who knew that we could throw ourselves a memorable party and help Jubilee at the same time? We were thrilled to enjoy everyone's company and fellowship on a very special night and even more pleased to be able to contribute in a meaningful way to a place that means so much to both of us. If you have a special event coming up, we encourage you to do likewise and name Jubilee as a recipient for donations. It could be a milestone birthday, anniversary or any other important event. Jubilee is a worthwhile and grateful recipient all year long.

Project 162 – Pay it Forward is a blood donor clinic like no other.

Originally the idea of Cynthia and Gary Hoy, to grieve, honour and celebrate their son Alistair, who received 162 units of blood during his 17 days of Leukemia treatment at Sick Kids hospital, it quickly became a huge community event. The goals were to raise awareness of Leukemia and other blood cancers; of the need to donate blood; and to collect 162 units of blood. The first event was held in 2011 at both Don Mills Collegiate and Jubilee. Friends, family, community and businesses alike came together in overwhelming numbers resulting in one of the largest community clinics in Toronto, resulting in 116 first time donors! 173 units of blood collected and $18,500 raised for the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society of Canada.

The event was repeated in 2012 with even greater results: 252 units collected and 107 First Time Donors and $18,020 raised. Also a spin off event: Links Fore Leukemia, engaged golfers and friends in Prince Edward County in this important cause.

And so, the project continues in 2013 – collecting blood, donations for treatment and research, and raising awareness. Canadian Blood Services are gearing up for April 25th at Don Mills Collegiate and Friday, April 26th at Jubilee. Plan to join us and give... you'll be amazed at how many lives you can change with just one donation: maybe even your own.

Community Table @Jubilee

Our Mission: To share good nutrition and friendship; to support and foster community and access to good food.

How are we doing it?

With great volunteers, we are providing Breakfast on Wednesday and Friday Mornings for kids on their way to school...

On Sundays, we are inviting the whole community in to make food, share food, learn new recipes, experience new cultures and share in SUNDAY DINNER!!

How can you be a part?

Be a volunteer – contact the church office...

Come out and cook... or eat... or both... and be part of community. It's why we are here!

Week Day Breakfasts happen all the time...

Sunday Dinners: April 14; May 5; June 2.

Hey, Guess What?

One year after our overwhelming vote to become an Affirming Ministry, Jubilee United Church is just that: An Affirming Ministry. Intentionally and actively embracing and celebrating diversity and recognizing God's love for and desire to act through all people. We are particularly aware of Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgendered (LGBT) people, but we do not want to limit our welcome or inclusion to any single group: we will strive to be aware of the barriers to all people to full participation in the church and community, including: Age, Ability, Economic Status, and Cultural Norms. We want Jubilee to reflect and include all of God's children!

Look forward to a worship celebration in the Spring!!

The Community Table....

We are up and running as of Family Day. Our first event was well attended, with Jubilee folks as well as a number of people from the community attending. The food was good and the company better. Marjorie Hollands, our nutrition consultant, spoke about the importance of breaking fast and what that would entail to ensure a good start to any day.

We are working to build up a presence for the Community Table Breakfast initiative. Working closely with local schools, information is getting out there. We hope to build on this over the spring and make more nutritious meals available to local school children.

Many parents have constraints around the provision of healthy meals: time, budget and knowledge are all factors in this. We hope to assist where we can to ensure a good start to the school day for anyone who wants it. Please tell neighbours and friends, even if only so that they, in turn, can pass the message on. The more people that are aware, the more opportunity there is to reach those who could benefit.

Meals are available every Wednesday and Friday starting at 7:45 in the morning. Children will be walked to their respective schools in time to start their day.

Thanks are due to David Hawker-Budlovsky, the Principal at Cassandra Public School, whose support has been instrumental in getting the message out. Special thanks to the over 20 dedicated volunteers who have committed to participating in and supporting this important community work.

The Benevolent Fund

The Benevolent Fund is a discreet fund that I use to help folks in greatest need. There are no reports made or records kept; it is entirely at my discretion. Every year, at Christmas and Easter, I invite you to contribute to this fund as you see fit.... Support was very high last year, so this is not a desperate plea – just a reminder of the opportunity at any time of year. In the past little while, the fund has provided support for food, education, and shelter. It is meant to be a modest fund, but often the results are far more than “modest” – helping people from taking the last step into a hole from which it is so hard to get out. We help desperate people; we also help those not yet desperate and hopefully keep them in a place of hope and real possibility. Many who have benefited from the Benevolent Fund have gone on to be contributors to the same fund... a sign to me that it works. You will not hear about these efforts during the year as privacy is essential – but please know that your contributions are valued and make a difference in people's lives.

Although we consider this to be an “extra”, if it arrives on the plate or through the office it can be added to your donations to Jubilee and be included on your tax receipt.

I thank you for your on-going support of the Benevolent Fund.

Thank You, Norm
